

APPNA Annual Conference 2025 in Dallas

Rashid Latif Medical College (RLMC) is pleased to highlight the participation of RLMC students at the Association of Physicians of Pakistani Descent of North America (APPNA) Annual Conference 2025, held in Dallas, USA.

Muhammad Tayyab Amer Ch and Noor Ahmad Aamer participated as members of the conference volunteer team, contributing to the organization and on-ground coordination of the event. Their responsibilities included preparing and distributing welcome briefcases for attendees, facilitating registration, and supporting the smooth execution of conference activities.

The students also attended Cardiology Continuing Medical Education (CME) sessions, featuring distinguished speakers and discussions on contemporary developments in cardiology, including acute coronary syndrome guidelines and the role of artificial intelligence in cardiology.

They further participated in sessions organized by the Young Physicians Committee (YPC) and interacted with medical professionals and program directors, gaining valuable insights into postgraduate training and international career pathways.

The experience provided RLMC students with valuable exposure to international medical education, professional networking, academic collaboration, and conference organization.

The Research Cell, RLMC appreciates the students' active participation and congratulates them for representing the institution on an international academic platform.
